Buchanan city manager receives positive evaluation

By DEBRA HAIGHT
Leader Correspondent

BUCHANAN — A year into his tenure as the Buchanan city manager, Tony McGhee received a very positive evaluation Monday after a closed session with Buchanan City Commissioners.

Commissioners met with McGhee in closed session for a half hour at the end of Monday night's commission meeting. Commissioners came out with praise for McGhee and the work he has done since becoming the city manager last January.

"Congratulations to Tony for his first year," Commissioner Larry Money said. "It's been a hectic year. You came in at a bad time and took charge. You've done a great job and the staff did a good job settling you in."

"I also want to say thank you to Tony for yet another great six months," Commissioner Raquell George said. "We couldn't have gotten through the last year without you. We really do have the best man at the wheel for capital planning and community involvement."

Mayor Mark Weedon said after the meeting that commissioners had rated McGhee on his performance in several categories and had given him high marks. Weedon said the commission gave McGhee marks of four and five on a scale of one to five and an overall score of 30.4 out of 35. He had received similar scores in an August mid-year evaluation.

McGHEE

The categories were communication and implementation of city policy, organizational management and staff development, fiscal management, policy and procedure development, community engagement, management of major projects and infrastructure, and leadership, judgment and problem solving.

Weedon said McGhee declined to take a raise. "He's looking out for the community and the budget," he said.

For his part, McGhee said that he had decided last year during the development of the current year's budget to not take a raise if one was offered. The city's fiscal year runs through June 30.

"When we developed the budget during my first few months with the city for the current fiscal year, which went into effect on July 1, I was aware that we would be entering the most intensive phase of construction and that it would have significant impacts on the community and local businesses," he said.

"With that in mind, I did not want to accept a raise if one were proposed by the Commission while we were managing the effects of this transformational work. As a result, no raise was included in the budget during the development process."

As for his positive evaluation, McGhee thanked the commission and the city staff. "I am obviously happy to receive another strong score from the Commission, but a significant part of the credit goes to the team we have here and their commitment to public service and the community," he said. "None of what we have

New Vision Church to celebrate 100 years in Niles

By MAXWELL HARDEN

NILES — A Niles church will be celebrating a century of serving the area as a beacon of faith, community and hope.

New Vision Church, 819 Lake St., Niles, is celebrating 100 years as a space of faith and fellowship.

"I think we might be the best kept secret in Michiana. I really do," said New Vision Bishop Carlton Burrel. "A lot of people aren't familiar with the Apostolic faith, so when they see Apostolic, they're like, 'what is that?' We're not mainstream but we've been here 100 years and I really feel that God has orchestrated us here and that's why I think we're gonna have longevity."

New Vision was founded in 1926 as Full Gospel Pentecostal Assembly. The first pastor, Orian Sanders, built the original church on 11th Street. The building still stands today. Harry Barnett succeeded Sanders as pastor and pastored until his death in 1952.

W. J. Coad was installed as pastor on Sept. 26, 1953, and under his leadership, a new church, Apostolic Faith Assembly, was built at the current location of 819 Lake St. and dedicated on Sept. 3, 1962. When Coad retired in 1991, the congregation chose Burrel to be the next pastor. On Aug. 12, 1994, the church was renamed New Vision An Apostolic Faith Assembly.

Burrel, who will celebrate his 35th pastoral anniversary alongside the church's centennial, attributes the its longevity to the resiliency of the congregation. Following a 1989 split, the church was left with 46 members. The church needed many repairs and a new roof when he assumed the leadership as pastor. Burrel immediately took steps to promote outreach and build up the church.

"There was a lot going on when I arrived 35 years ago," Burrel said. "Every administration is different and brings a different vision or projection for the future – something you feel God desires you to do. I made changes right away. Niles is a beautiful community where my children graduated and I now have grandchildren, but I felt the vision was larger than just Niles. We immediately started a radio broadcast, purchased a van to pick people up, and started evangelism and outreach, which hadn't been happening. The previous pastor had more of a 'four-walls ministry,' where they took care of the church and each other but weren't as concerned with reaching out to other areas in the community."

The pandemic was the latest hurdle the church overcame. The church was able to pivot to media ministry with the assistance of a media tech team. All services were live streamed which included its Sunday school department, adult Sunday school and prayer. The church's Ministerial Alliance meetings were held on the phone conference line and during the summer of 2020, services were held in the church parking lot.

"New Vision is a very resilient assembly," he said. "We've weathered many storms and transitions. Worship is voluntary, so you have to weather the transitions of people coming and going. Sometimes those leaving hold very important positions, which leaves a hole. During the pandemic, we never missed a beat. Even when services were outside, people came and parked in their vehicles with their windows rolled down.

"It was necessary to go 'tech' to survive," he continued. "We held services outside for a year, until we couldn't do it anymore. We invested in cameras, computers and technology. We had to do that to survive. Many churches went under in 2020 because they couldn't make that transition. I was criticized by some who said I didn't have faith because we shut down the building, but some of those churches that stayed open had many [COVID-related fatalities]. We didn't have any."

Teaching and love

The New Vision congregation is made up of more than just the Niles community. Members hail from cities such as Benton Harbor, Berrien Springs, Buchanan, South Bend, Elkhart and beyond. Niles resident Pearl Wade has been a proud member of New Vision for 34 years.

While Niles has many churches, New Vision was everything Wade was looking for.

"This one was different," she said. "The teaching from the bishop and [his wife Gayle Burrel] is excellent. My children have grown into adults here, and now I even have grandchildren coming. I am here today because of that teaching and the love in this church; it is where my heart is. Being here for 30 years, you see and learn a lot and God has been good to me."

Minister Gwendolyn Finney has been attending New Vision for 33 years. For Finney, what sets New Vision apart from other churches is the education. From bible studies to financial management classes and much more, Burrel's teachings have made an impact on the congregation.

"The standards here are different," Finney said. "After 33 years, we remain faithful to bible study because Bishop Burrel brings something unique. It speaks volumes that I can still recall what he preached years ago. The teaching provided by the bishop and [Gayle Burrel] is

City Council approves downtown events

By MAXWELL HARDEN
max.harden@leaderpub.com

NILES — Two upcoming community events got the go-ahead Monday night from the Niles City Council.

The council unanimously granted permission to the Olde Boys Toys Car Club to conduct its Cruise-In Car Show event from 5 to 8 p.m. every Wednesday starting June 3 through Aug. 19 and approved Mainly Marathons' walking/running event Sunday, July 12 at Riverfront Park.

The car shows will be held in the grassy area of Riverfront Park behind Wonderland Cinema. The group plans to gain access to the park from Ferry Street, and turn in on the west side of the cinema.

"I was excited to see you guys coming back downtown," said Mayor Nick Shelton. "You ran a really great event. I think a few years ago was the last time you were here and it was a pleasure having you guys down there. I'm looking forward to seeing you again this summer."

The event received permission from the council for a live band and DJ to perform during the event. While the original motion called for barriers to be removed each week for 11 weeks at a total cost of $2,400, the motion was amended to remove the barrier prior to the start of the events in June and replace it following the completion of the series in August as a cost-saving measure.

Founded in 1987, the Olde Boys Toys Car Club focused on promoting the appreciation of classic cars and those who own and fix them. Upon completion of the 13-week event, proceeds will be donated to local charities.

"I've been associated with these folks for a number of years. They run a very well organized, well-controlled car show down there," said Second Ward Councilmember Tim Rogers. "One of their points is that alcohol and gasoline do not mix, so even though they're going to be right behind Front Street Pizza, there will be nobody allowed there to be drinking on site or during the event. "It should be a really nice draw for downtown."

Mainly Marathons is a nationwide marathon group that chose the City of Niles as their destination in the Heartland series of their tour. The organization anticipates 150 runners from out of

Farkas' 'Sky Pads' bloom in Benton Harbor

Dowagiac artist's water-lily series on display at The Space In-Between

By CATE CHRISTINIDIS
Paxton Media Group

BENTON HARBOR — Award-winning artist Alli Farkas was "born and bred" in Los Angeles.

But, with a degree in art from Occidental College, LA was not merely Farkas' birthplace, it was the breeding ground for her artistry.

Early in her artistic career, Farkas found inspiration in the annual Echo Park Lotus Festival, which, founded in 1972 as "The Day of the Lotus," honors the contributions of Asian and Pacific Islander cultures to the Los Angeles area.

"There was a park – it's called Echo Park – and it wasn't too far from my house," Farkas said. "And it had a huge display of lotus every summer, and tons of artists would come out and set up their little easels and their chairs and paint those lotuses every summer."

The result: her first foray into water-lilies – a 16-piece series, titled "Echo Park."

Following the deadly Northridge Earthquake in 1994, however, Farkas and her at-the-time husband left LA for the Chicago area. There, Farkas, a self-proclaimed "horse freak," resumed painting – this time, horse portraits and landscapes.

Still, Farkas has always been realistic about the financial instability of being an artist, insisting that art is not her career, but rather a "halfway hobby and halfway career."

Her career?

In 1980, Farkas began working in the TV industry as a news editor, continuing to explore her artistic creativity on the side. She continued to work in TV after her move to Illinois, but as the years progressed, consolidations and changes within the industry made work more scarce.

Farkas' next move, which landed her in Dowagiac, would prove to be life-changing.

"When I got to Michigan, everything changed," she said. "I met all kinds of people, accidentally or on purpose, who were interested in art, and a bunch of us formed Cass Area Artists in 2015."

Cass Area Artists, now a 501(c)(3), works to support the Michiana arts community, holding free artist exhibits twice a year, which include cash prizes for the artists.

However, Cass Area Artists was not the only positive to come out of Farkas' move to Michigan. Having settled on Dowagiac's Mill Pond, her fascination with water-lilies was unexpectedly rekindled.

"I can just walk out and look at the lake and look at what's in it," Farkas said. "And I had my camera with me, and I took a bunch of pictures. ... I hadn't really shot the photos for uniqueness. I wanted some nice shots that would give me a good sense of, you know, the shapes and whatever.

What she captured, however, was irrefutably unique – and it's been guiding her art for the past decade.

"When I took the pictures out of my camera, I noticed that the sky had been really cloudy that day, and the clouds were all reflected in the water, and it looked like the water-lilies were floating in the clouds instead of the water," she said.

According to Farkas, her current series, "Sky Pads," began taking shape on a hot, mid-summer day in 2016. After propping a blank canvas on a wheelbarrow, she poured a turpentine-paint mixture onto the canvas, letting gravity guide the flow of the paint. To Farkas' surprise, however, once the paint mixture had dried, it was no longer "smooth and fluffy," but "striated" – a perfect base to build upon.

"Sky Pads" is currently on display at The-Space-in-Between, 196 Water St., Benton Harbor, through Feb. 28. The gallery is open for browsing from 5:30-6:30 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays, with additional viewing available by appointment.

Since "Sky Pads'" inception, Farkas' work has been displayed in numerous local galleries, including the Box Factory for the Arts and Krasl Art Center. Most recently, however, she was awarded Best of Show 2D for her piece, "Sky Pads 41," at the Carnegie Institute for the Arts in Three Rivers.

Naturally, the last decade has also keyed Farkas in on the secret of sustaining a long-term project.

"You have to have to have a good sense of composition, first of all, because the placement is critical," she said. "So, you have to figure out where things are going to go, even if they're a different way in your photograph. ... And if you are unable to disconnect yourself from perfection, you will have a tough time as an artist."

With an impressive 41 pieces in the series so far, each exuding a sense of "calmness," "relaxation" and "peacefulness, Farkas said the finish line is nowhere in sight.

"I might have to – I hate to say this – I would have to go blind to stop," she said. "The whole thing is an adventure, and when you get to the end of it successfully, I mean, you just want to go around and just do a little hip-hop and say, 'Yes!'"

Meshing Farkas' themes of peace and relaxation with the spirit of Valentine's Day, a special showing of "Sky Pads" will be held from 4-8 p.m. Saturday at The Space In-Between, which shares an entrance with Harbor Pilates. The event, titled "Art for the Heart," will feature complimentary wine, chocolates and cheese, according to Curator John Gatto.

She was also blessed with seven grandchildren: Brennan (Tiffani) Coyne, Katie Coyne, Korrin Johnson, Ethan Johnson, Luke Johnson, Becca Norman, and Charlize Kempton. She was so proud of each of them and never stopped mothering every member of her family.

Lou Ann was most proud of her daughters and would tell anyone who would listen just how blessed she was to have them care for her. She valued her family deeply, but also cherished her friendships, especially Bonnie Huffman, Linda Gourlay, and Fran Welling. She always lit up when talking to them or reminiscing about her time with them.

She enjoyed playing Bridge and looked forward to her time of fellowship with her Bridge Ladies. She also was a proud member of Beta Sigma Phi for 60 years. Her sorority sisters loved and supported her through all of life's journey, and she loved them deeply in return.

The family would like to thank Corewell Hospice at Home for their tender care of Lou Ann over the past year, especially her team, Tami and Lisa. Lou Ann always enjoyed the weekly visits and laughter. Nicole would especially like to thank Tami for the love and care she showed Lou Ann. Her presence and compassion were felt during the most important time and will never be forgotten.

Niles man gets probation for meth possession

By DEBRA HAIGHT
Leader Correspondent

CASSOPOLIS — A Niles man with an extensive criminal record was given the chance to stay out of prison after pleading guilty to possession of methamphetamine.

Paul Cleo-Clinton Werrtz, 44, of Rose Drive in Niles, was sentenced to three years probation, credit for two days served and $1,548 in fines and costs.

WERNTZ

The incident occurred April 30, 2025 in Howard Township near Niles. Police were called on reports of a domestic violence incident and pursued Werntz who had fled the scene at a high rate of speed. Meth was found on him after his arrest.

Cass County Assistant Prosecutor Jason Ronning noted that Werntz's past record included 13 felony and at least seven misdemeanor convictions. He also pointed out that Werntz had served time in prison in the past and had failed a few years ago when he was sentenced to a Swift & Sure probation.

Defense attorney Nicholas Hogue said that while Werntz's sentencing guidelines called for a prison sentence of 19 to 38 months, there was more to consider including the fact he has a job, a stable residence and strong family support.

"The core question is whether he will use supervision as structure for his life or a game," Hogue said. "Let him prove to the court that he's able to be out in community … Tight supervision plus accountability is better than sending him to prison. It's worth putting his feet to the fire and have that Damocles sword hanging above his head."

Werntz acknowledged his past criminal record but said he's been working diligently to change his lifestyle. "There are a lot of people who depend on me, I have worked hard to change my life," he said.

Cass County Circuit Court Judge Mark Herman noted that he had sentenced Werntz four times previously and seen him not take advantage of other opportunities to get help and stay out of prison.

"I was prepared to give you 38 months today because that's what your history showed me," Judge Herman said. "That is consistent with what you would have gotten if Swift & Sure was available."

The judge warned Werntz that he must follow all the probation rules and not violate any criminal law if he wants to stay out of prison.

A Niles man who is studying to be a firefighter will have the chance to keep a felony charge off his record after pulling out a BB gun during an altercation at a social gathering.

The 20-year-old Niles man pleaded guilty to felonious assault and was sentenced under the Holmes Youthful Training Act to two years probation, credit for one day served and $1,978 in fines and costs.

The incident occurred July 20, 2025 at a location in Pokagon Township. The young man pulled out a BB gun during an altercation with another person at the gathering.

Ronning pointed out that the young man was lucky that no one was hurt in the incident.

"The victim didn't know it was a BB gun or that it was inoperable," he said. "He, the defendant or others could have easily been killed. I hope he recognizes that. At 20 years old, I hope he's old enough for that to sink in."

Defense attorney Greg Feldman said that the young man made a big mistake due to youth and had learned from the incident.

"The prosecutor is 100 percent correct," he said. "The victim could have pulled out a gun and it could have gotten out of hand very quickly with people injured or killed."

"You pull a gun out for only two reasons, in defense of your own life or in defense of someone else's life," Judge Herman said. "Be prepared to use it if pull it out. If you pull out a gun to threaten somebody and you don't know if the person is armed, you might end up six feet under or end up here in courtroom."

Another area youth was also sentenced to probation after being involved in the theft of guns from a local hardware store.

Jacob Michael Morrison, 19, of Mount Zion Street in Cassopolis, pleaded guilty to receiving, concealing stolen property over $1,000 and under $20,000 and was sentenced to two years probation, credit for three days served and $2,478 in fines and costs. Restitution will be determined at a later date but could be as much as $13,000 or more.

The incident occurred March 24, 2025 in Cassopolis when Morrison was present when another youth tried to sell stolen guns to an undercover police officer.

Judge Herman told Morrison that he should consider himself lucky as he could have faced a mandatory two years in prison for use of a firearm in the commission of a felony without a plea deal from the prosecutor's office.

In other sentencings:

Randy Ray Deweerd, 65, of Marcellus, pleaded guilty to possession of methamphetamine and was sentenced to two years probation, credit for 17 days served and $2,268 in fines and costs. The incident occurred June 5, 2025 in Marcellus.

Sydney Dianne Moore, 28, of North Street in Dowagiac, pleaded guilty to possession of methamphetamine and was sentenced to 18 months probation, credit for 171 days served and $2,148 in fines and costs. The incident occurred Aug. 1, 2025 in Dowagiac.

SMC 2nd in state in enrollment growth

By JOHN EBY
Southwestern Michigan College

DOWAGIAC — Southwestern Michigan College finished second statewide for spring enrollment growth percentage among Michigan's 28 community colleges.

Spring marks SMC's eighth consecutive semester for enrollment growth, Interim President Brent Brewer told the Board of Trustees at its Feb. 11 meeting.

Enrollment climbed 8.8 percent and is up 10.9 percent in credit hours compared to Spring 2025, Brewer reported.

"I am happy, frankly thrilled, to report that our spring enrollment is +168 students or +8.8 percent in head count or +9.7 percent in contact hours – clear indicators that both access and engagement continue to strengthen," Brewer said. "From Spring 2022 to Spring 2026, we have grown 31.8 percent in head count and 33.4 percent in contact hours. This growth is a remarkable achievement in a highly competitive environment. Even more significant, this milestone of eight consecutive semesters of enrollment growth reflects sustained momentum and the collective impact of intentional recruitment, strong academic programming and a campus culture focused on student success."

Also in his president's report, Brewer noted SMC's athletic teams "are on fire."

"The men's basketball team has won three of its last five and the women have won four of their last five. They are peaking at the right time. Men's and women's track and field had another successful day at the Walt Cramer Invitational" in Illinois on Feb. 7, Brewer said.

"And men's wrestling competed at the Michigan Community College Athletic Association (MCCAA) Individual Championships last weekend and came home champions, marking a four-peat! Coach (Todd) Hesson was named MCCAA Coach of the Year and Santana Ramon was named MCCAA Wrestler of the Year."

In action related to the first phase of the Dale A. Lyons Building renovation, which will remodel and expand the choir room, trustees awarded a $1,211,943 contract to Pearson Construction Co.

Carmi Design Group architects in Niles evaluated bids from seven general contractors in shaping their recommendation. President Tony Leininger said the first phase project will be completed by August.

The board acknowledged 26 donations to the SMC Foundation totaling $48,375. Trustees also accepted two gifts to the college for $3,612.50.

Trump-appointed judge rejects Justice Department's push for voter list

By CRAIG MAUGER
The Detroit News (TNS)

LANSING — A federal judge who was appointed by Republican President Donald Trump blocked on Tuesday a bid by Trump's Department of Justice to get a complete copy of Michigan's registered voter list.

Judge Hala Jarbou of Michigan's Western District said a series of federal laws failed to guarantee access to some sensitive information like voters' driver's license numbers, birthdates and Social Security numbers.

"The provision of personal information can establish someone's identity because that information is only possessed by that individual; if everyone has access to the information, it can no longer be used to verify that a person is who they claim to be," Jarbou wrote in a 23-page opinion.

On July 21, the Department Justice, within Trump's administration, sent a letter to Michigan Secretary of State Jocelyn Benson, a Democrat and Michigan's top election official, seeking an electronic copy of the state's computerized voter list.

BENSON

But Benson's office agreed to turn over only a public version of the list without some of the personal information attached to each voter.

The Trump administration filed a lawsuit in Michigan's Western District. It submitted similar litigation in other states, including California, Minnesota and New York.

U.S. Attorney General Pamela Bondi has said she's pursuing the voter lists to ensure that registration records are accurate, accessible and secure.

But Jarbou's ruling granted motions to dismiss the Department of Justice suit in the Michigan case.

For years, Trump has promoted unproven theories of widespread voter fraud across the United States, including claiming that there was "massive voter fraud " in Michigan's 2020 election, which the Republican lost to Democrat Joe Biden.

Benson, who's running for governor in 2026, said her office had given the Justice Department what it was legally entitled to: the public version of Michigan's voter file.

"States can and must hold the line," Benson said previously. "Only state and local election officials – not the president, the DOJ or any other federal agency – have the right to people's private voter information."

In its pursuit of the records, the Department of Justice had cited the Help America Vote Act (HAVA), the National Voter Registration Act and the Civil Rights Act.

But Jarbou's ruling said none of those policies required the state to turn over the full voter list. HAVA, for example, focused on the administration of elections.

"The United States argues that HAVA authorizes it to obtain Michigan's voter registration list, though it acknowledges that HAVA lacks any provision related to disclosure," Jarbou wrote.

Interpreting the voter registration law to require public disclosure of all private information submitted for voter registration purposes would potentially cause the statute to impose an unconstitutional burden on the right to vote guaranteed by the First Amendment, Jarbou added.

The Department of Justice could appeal the decision.

More than a feeling – thinking about love as a virtue can change how we respond to hate

By TUCKER J. GREGOR
University of Iowa (The Conversation)

THE CONVERSATION

Love and hate seem like obvious opposites. Love, whether romantic or otherwise, involves a sense of warmth and affection for others. Hate involves feelings of disdain. Love builds up, whereas hate destroys.

However, this description of love and hate treats them as merely emotions. As a religious ethicist, I am interested in the role love plays in our moral lives: how and why it can help us live well together. How does our understanding of the love-hate relationship change if we imagine love not as an emotion but as a virtue?

The 13th-century theologian Thomas Aquinas is a foundational thinker in the history of Christian ethics. For Aquinas, hate is not the antithesis of love, or even opposed to it. In his most important work, the "Summa Theologiae," he writes that hate responds to love. In other words, hate is a reaction to threats against what we love, or what we deeply value. We can better understand the experience of hate by getting clear on what it means to love.

Greek roots

Today, scientists know that feelings of love are related to biochemical processes that release chemicals in the brain, increasing pleasure and excitement. Beyond mere biology or even emotions, some philosophers and psychologists contend that love is also a practice.

Love can also refer to a virtue: a habit or settled disposition that increases the likelihood of people thinking, feeling and acting in ways that promote happiness and well-being. For example, the virtue of courage can help people endure and thrive in the midst of fear and uncertainty.

The concept of virtue is as old as philosophy itself. In the "Republic," written in the fourth century B.C.E., Plato distinguishes between virtue in general and the individual virtues that he believes characterize well-being, such as wisdom, courage, moderation and justice.

Love is not among them. Instead, he associates love – for which he used the Greek word "eros" – with feelings of physical desire.

It was Aristotle, one of Plato's students, who inched love closer toward virtue. In Aristotle's "Nicomachaen Ethics," he writes that virtue involves learning how to act and feel "at the right times, about the right things, toward the right people, for the right end, and in the right way." The individual virtues are cultivated over time through repetition.

For an act to be virtuous, one must consciously and deliberately act for the sake of some moral value. For example, Aristotle states that a generous person does good by giving wealth to the right people. Someone who spends with the aim of receiving some benefit in return merely appears generous. The person's character and the spirit in which they give matters.

The virtuous life isn't easy – but true friends can help. Aristotle believed that relationships of mutual respect and concern can empower us to develop virtues. Unlike friendships that are situational or superficial, these deeper connections are characterized by "philia," a kind of love. Friendships based in philia are virtuous: They involve mutual accountability and concern for each other, as if each person were an extension of oneself.

Aquinas' take

The Christian moral tradition builds and elaborates on these Greek foundations. For Christian theologians and moral philosophers, love can refer to an emotion, an affection, a duty and, yes, a virtue.

Aquinas considers virtue to be a stable disposition of the will – our capacity to choose – that contributes to a well-lived life. Individual virtues are good habits that influence how we relate to ourselves and other people in our daily lives, including love.

He also considers love to be a theological virtue – a gift of God's grace that people can choose to embrace or reject. "Caritas," or "charity" in Latin, is defined as friendship with God. Aquinas writes that it has a social benefit, too: Caritas inclines people toward treating their fellow humans with kindness, acting to advance others' well-being.

The other types of love, eros and philia, are subjective. They respond to our perception of value in other people and things. Caritas creates value in other people, whether or not we are able to see it.

Love and hate

How can approaching love as a virtue – rather than an emotion, affection or biochemical reaction – help us understand feelings of hatred?

From Aquinas' perspective, the feeling of hate is dependent on and conditioned by the people and things that we love, or that we consider good for ourselves and other people, whether that's a sports team, a movie or an ideology.

Yet if we take love to be a virtue – a daily habit that we choose to guide our practices – then we can exercise a degree of control over how we respond to feelings of hatred.

Consider how much hate there is in politics, such as hatred of a particular policy, politician or belief – or hatred of injustice itself. But at root, perhaps that hate is a response to love; for example, love for one's neighbors, one's country or one's ideals. Recognizing that possibility can help us respond with a loving choice, like peaceful protest, as a way to advocate for rights. By cultivating the virtue of love, people are more likely to engage in practices of care and empathy necessary for communities to thrive.

Distinguishing between feelings of love, practices of love and the virtue of love can empower us to respond to feelings of hatred. Becoming better lovers requires engaging with destructive emotions, rather than running from them.

STATE NEWS

Report: Bridge threat came after Lutnick met rival crossing owner

By BLOOMBERG NEWS (TNS)

President Donald Trump's threat to block a new bridge from Detroit to Canada followed a meeting between his Commerce Secretary and a billionaire who owns an existing border-crossing bridge just miles from the new span, according to two people familiar with the matter.

On Monday evening the president said on Truth Social he'd prevent the Gordie Howe International Bridge from opening until Canada "fully compensated" the US, and said the U.S. should own 50 percent of the asset.

The social media post followed a Monday meeting between Howard Lutnick and Matthew Moroun, whose family owns and operates the Ambassador Bridge, currently the busiest crossing over the border between Detroit and Windsor, Ontario, the people said. Following the meeting, Lutnick called Trump.

The White House declined to comment. Representatives for Detroit International Bridge Co., the company which operates the Ambassador Bridge, and other companies where Moroun holds roles did not immediately respond to a request for comment. The New York Times first reported the talks.

Construction of the $4.7 billion Gordie Howe bridge was paid for entirely by Canada. It's largely complete and was due to open soon. In a deal agreed over a decade ago, Canada is set to receive toll revenues until it has recouped the construction cost, after which time that money will be split equally between Canada and Michigan. Both governments will co-own the asset. Both governments also appoint an equal number of members to an oversight body.

But the Morouns have long lobbied against Canada building a new bridge, which would rival their privately-held span.

In 2012, Matthew's father Matty Moroun supported an unsuccessful statewide ballot in Michigan in an attempt to restrict the state's ability to own or develop new international bridges. Matthew Moroun then lobbied Trump during his first term to rescind a waiver granted by President Barack Obama exempting the crossing from having to use only U.S. steel. Matty Moroun died in 2020. Moroun companies have also filed lawsuits which would have obstructed the construction of the Gordie Howe bridge.

Trump's involvement injects fresh uncertainty into the project.

The president wants to strike a deal with the Canadians over the Gordie Howe bridge, one of the people said. He spoke to Canada's Prime Minister Mark Carney on Tuesday morning, who said Trump asked to involve his ambassador to Canada, Pete Hoekstra, who is from Michigan.

Trump's broadside against Canada, the largest buyer of U.S. exports, is the latest in a crescendo of tensions between the two countries as they prepare to review the economically critical U.S.-Mexico-Canada Agreement trade deal, which Trump negotiated in his first term.

Trump's rhetoric on Canada, such as calling for it to become a U.S. state, had softened after Prime Minister Mark Carney replaced Justin Trudeau in an election last April. But it's ramped up again since October, when Ontario Premier Doug Ford ran ads in the U.S. quoting former President Ronald Reagan against tariffs. Trump terminated trade talks as a result, leaving in place large tariffs on key Canadian exports to the U.S. like aluminum, steel and autos, as well as a 35 percent tariff on the small amount of trade not covered by USMCA.

The Washington-Ottawa relationship deteriorated further in the last month, after Carney struck a tariff detente with Chinese President Xi Jinping and gave a speech in Davos, Switzerland which many saw as a critique and rallying cry against U.S. foreign and trade policy. Since October, Trump has threatened to increase his 35 percent tariff on Canada to 45 percent, then floated a 100 percent tariff, as well as a 50 percent tariff on Canadian-made planes. None of those taxes have yet been imposed.

By MAXWELL HARDEN

NILES — Key city streets in need of improvements will soon receive proper maintenance. The Niles City Council approved a contract with Northern Construction Services Corp. Monday to carry out its planned street improvement projects.

Council documents state that funds have been set aside in the budget for the current fiscal year for Major/Local road re-surfacing projects. Bids were opened on Jan. 29 with three bids received.

Northern Construction was the low bidder at $702,664.80 for all 10 projects:

- Grant Street-St. Joseph Avenue to Broadway Bridge

accomplished in my first year here would have been possible without them."

Weedon said that McGhee's evaluations will now be done on an annual basis without mid-year evaluations.

Also Monday, commissioners held two public hearings, approved a tree stump removal bid and received year-end reports from the city's fire and police departments. No public comment was received in either public hearing.

A public hearing on responsibility for sewer laterals was held and an ordinance adopted to codify existing city policy. The city's policy has been and will remain that sewer lines from the main to people's homes will be the property owner's responsibility.

The commission held the first of two public hearings about the regulation of sidewalk cafes and outdoor dining areas. McGhee first introduced the idea last month, saying it will streamline the process for restaurants to get permits to have outdoor seating. A second public hearing and possible ordinance adoption will come March 9.

Police Chief Harvey Burnett gave an overview of the department's activities in 2025. He said that the department's complaint load was up primarily due to having more personnel. "The statistics are pretty much similar to the previous year, Buchanan is a pretty safe place to live," he said.

Fire Chief Mike Adams said 2025 was a record year for his department with firefighters responding to 172 calls. He highlighted the department's activities month by month and also said he expects the city's ISO insurance rating to be lowered which would translate into savings for property owners.

Adams and a number of firefighters were on hand to show off and demonstrate the new self contained breathed apparatus recently purchased. The department is replacing its outdated equipment in a phased approach.

NEW VISION

applicable to my life and has been a massive blessing. Beyond biblical principles, the church offered financial management classes years ago that helped us learn how to manage money and be successful both naturally and spiritually. [Gayle Burrel] also taught a "New Covenant" class for new converts, helping us begin our walk with the Lord. Those principles remain the foundation of where we are today."

Teaching is second nature for Burrel, who in addition to pastoring has spent decades teaching students in Grand Rapids, Muskegon Heights and Niles public schools. After earning a psychology degree from Michigan State University, Burrel made the life-changing decision to pursue teaching. Burrel believes his background in psychology and teaching bolstered his ability to serve the community as a pastor.

"There are a slew of kids now in their 50s and their 40s who were students that I was able to influence their lives," he said. "I'm sure the reason I can work with kids nobody else would work with was because the Lord Jesus Christ had his hand on me even then, to be able to minister to those that are left out, those that are forsaken, those that are discarded or oppressed. I feel like my education was for a reason. I don't know what would have happened if I had become a clinical psychologist but my degree in psychology was helping me to deal with a lot of the things that I was dealing with."

"He has an outstanding reputation in the community as a teacher," Finney added. "Under bishop Burrel's pastorate here, we have lawyers, nurses, caregivers, seamstresses, social workers and teachers. For a while there, several years in a row, the majority of the minority students that were graduating from Niles High School were from this ministry. That all came out of New Vision.

A 'New Vision' for the future

For many in New Vision's congregation, the church is more than a place of worship. It is a second home; a place where people from all walks of life gather to better themselves, help each other and improve their communities.

"Bishop Burrel has done an outstanding job keeping this church going and keeping the doors open," Finney said. "He works very hard without complaining. He helps us grow as adults and has been a cornerstone in my life. I now have three generations of my family here: myself, my daughter and my grandson. He fills a void for many people here who never had fathers, brothers, or uncles. He wears many hats and is a great father to his own children. I have watched his children grow up for 33 years, and they were always patient while their father was counseling members or teaching school. They shared their parents relentlessly with the congregation, always standing back until he was finished talking to others."

New Vision will be celebrating its 100th anniversary and Burrel's 35th Pastoral Anniversary Saturday, July 18 at the Morris Inn, 1399 N. Notre Dame Ave., South Bend, Indiana. The cost of the meal, which is buffet style, is $100 for ages 18-and-up, $25 for ages 12-17, $15 for ages 5-11 and free for ages four-and-under. The church will also be celebrating 100 years at its July 19 service at 11:30 a.m.

Wade and Finney are proud of New Vision and its history and look forward to the future of the church.

"Nothing that happens around here ceases to amaze me," Wade said. "I've seen a lot in 30-something years here and we've got things that are getting ready to happen around here. With the congregation that we have, we can do it. It'll take a whole lot but we have the people that will help make it happen. And that's what I'm looking forward to while I'm still here. I'm getting ready to be 70 years old. I just look forward to coming here."

"I just see that we're going to continue growing," Finney said. "We're hoping to move out beyond the four walls. We might get back out evangelizing and ministering to the people and trying to bring people in. He's got a faithful core group here. We're going to support him in whichever way he wants that vision to go. It's all about souls for all of us, but that's the goal. It's always the goal to try to win souls to the Lord."

state to participate July 12 from 5 a.m. to 4 p.m. with the walking/running event starting at 6:00am.

According to council documents, the staging area will be in the parking lot next to the boat landing and the course will remain on the Riverfront Trail using the same set-up and course as previous years. Safety cones and safety signs will be placed on the course. The course would remain open to the public with no barricades used.

While the event is a Class 1 event, the event was brought to council for approval because organizers are requesting to set up two travel trailers with four vehicles in south Riverfront Park overnight on Saturday July 11. For more information, visit mainlymarathons.com.

In other business, the council approved a five-year airport ground lease for Phillip and Nancy Vanderwerf of Cassopolis.

Brandywine girls win 3rd straight Lakeland crown

PMG STAFF

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Another championship for the Brandywine girls basketball team.

The No. 1-ranked Bobcats roared past Berrien Springs 55-31 Friday night to claim a third straight conference title and 12th in Josh Hood's 17 years as coach. The boys team also defeated Berrien Springs 56-52 to avenge a 73-70 triple overtime loss to Berrien on January 9.

The Brandywine girls are 5-0 in the Lakeland Conference and have won 23 straight conference games. The Bobcats are 15-0 overall with an average win margin of 35 points per game. Hood's team should be tested Saturday when it hosts 11-1 Wolverine Conference-leading Otsego (11-1) at 3 p.m.

Brandywine was in charge Friday night the entire way, holding quarter leads of 16-5, 32-14 and 51-18. Zaya Price scored nine of her team-high 12 points in the first half. Lily Gill added 11 points and Hailey Smith and Karleigh Byrd each had 10.

On the boys' side, the Bobcats improve to 4-1 and tie the Shamrocks atop the league race.

Ryder Richard scored 16 of his game-high 20 points in the first half while helping Brandywine take a 32-21 lead at one point. Berrien Springs came back to take a 37-35 edge midway through the third quarter. After three ties, Will Hubbard hit a pair of free throws with 3.4 seconds left in the third to put the Bobcats on top 43-41. And Brandywine led the rest of the way.

Nick Shelton, for Leader Publications

The Brandywine girls basketball team won its third straight Lakeland Conference title Friday night at Berrien Springs.

Nylen Goins added 18 points and Hubbard had 12 for Nathan Knapp's team, which is 14-4 overall and has won seven in a row.

Dowagiac's Kiner signs to run as a Roadrunner

By MAXWELL HARDEN

DOWAGIAC — A Dowagiac athlete is taking her talents to the next level.

Jocelyn Kiner has signed her NJCAA Letter of Intent to run cross country for Coach Zac Sartori and the Roadrunners starting in Fall 2026. Kiner will also compete in track and field for SMC.

"I've been excited about getting Jocelyn out for a couple of years now," Sartori said. "She is a hard worker and dedicated to improving herself. She's both kind and motivated and I'm really looking forward to having her on the team next fall."

Kiner is the first member of the 2026 SMC Women's Cross Country recruiting class.

"Jocelyn started running for Dowagiac her freshman year, which was also my first year of coaching," said Dowagiac coach Ryan Maggert. "Since day one, Jocelyn showed up to every practice with a huge smile on her face and a positive attitude. No matter how hard practice was, how hot or cold it was, or how far we ran, she just kept smiling and gave it her all every day. Jocelyn has been a joy to coach for the past four years.

"I look forward to watching her continued growth as an athlete, a student and an individual."

In September 2025, the Roadrunners shocked the field and won the MCCAA Western Conference championship on their home course in Dowagiac. The team then finished the season ranked 18th in the country after competing in the NJCAA National Championships in unseasonably cold and snowy conditions at the Lakeside Golf Course in Fort Dodge, Iowa.

Dowagiac wins 9th consecutive team district title

By MAXWELL HARDEN

DOWAGIAC — It has been both a busy and successful week for Dowagiac wrestling.

The Chieftains earned their third straight Lakeland Conference title Saturday, Feb. 7 and followed that up with a Division 3 District title Wednesday at home. The Chieftains beat Hartford 56-17 and Watervliet 71-8 to claim the program's ninth straight district crown.

"Things went well, we're finally starting to click on all cylinders," said Dowagiac coach Colin Burandt. "It's exciting winning another district title. We're looking to take the next step at regionals and get over the hump."

While this year's team may be young with just four upperclassmen, the Chieftains are also both experienced and talented. Rooney Olmedo, Aiden Vorhees, Jacob Villegas, Cameron White, Jeremiah Hargreaves, Brody Brewer, Skylar Vincek and Khalif Reyna earned conference titles in their respective weight classes. The girls team also turned in a strong performance placing fifth out of 40 teams in the Southwest Conference. Returning state finalist Cinthia Villegas earned a conference title in her class while Bailey Ottinger placed third in her class.

"Our freshman class has some really talented kids. The sophomore class is built the same way and getting another year of experience has helped them take jumps," Burandt said. "When you mix it with our junior-senior leadership, it clicks well. We talk about the 'Dowagic standard' – to leave it all out there for six minutes on the mat. If you do that, the results will take care of themselves."

The Dowagiac wrestling team captured its ninth straight team district title Wednesday at home.

After dealing with injuries at key spots during the regular season, the Chieftains are now healthy and peaking at just the right time.

"We haven't had a full healthy lineup all year until the past couple weeks," Burandt said. "Getting the team to gel has been goal No. 1."

Dowagiac will host fellow Lakeland Conference member Buchanan as well as Allegan and Constantine at 6 p.m. Wednesday in the Division 3 Regional Final. Burandt and the Chieftains are hoping to take the next step and return to the team state tournament for the first time in five years.

"It would mean a lot just to do it this young," Burandt said. We're one year ahead of schedule. Our program has grown year over year. We want to rejuvenate the excitement we've had in year's past. It's been five years since we went to team state – we went three years in a row. We want to make it back."

Edwardsburg keeps winning streak going, beats Sturgis

By SCOTT HASSINGER
Leader Correspondent

EDWARDSBURG — One day after pulling out a physical three-point win over St. Joseph, the Edwardsburg boys' basketball team had to adapt to a totally different style of play Tuesday at home against Wolverine Conference foe Sturgis.

Jared Frick's Eddies handled that task very well emerging with a 44-32 win over the Trojans.

With its fourth straight victory, Edwardsburg improves to 13-6 overall and is now tied for third with Plainwell in the league standings at 8-4. Sturgis falls to 8-10 and 3-9 in the conference.

Edwardsburg and its young roster, which includes five sophomores and three juniors, looked a bit weary at times during the contest. Very understandable considering the Eddies were playing their fifth game in the last 10 days.

"Our kids are pretty tired after three games last week and two already this week with a big game with Niles left this Friday. We got a little complacent in the second half. I give Sturgis a lot of credit. Keith always has those kids ready to play and they play good zone defense and make you think alot," Frick said.

The Eddies built a comfortable 25-10 lead going into halftime, but Keith Kurowski's Trojans made things interesting in the second half with its controlled tempo and stingy defense.

Back-to-back three pointers by Sturgis' Lukis Bir to start the third quarter lessened the Trojans' deficit to nine, 25-16. The Eddies quickly hiked the lead back to double digits after 6-foot-1 junior guard Blaise Crist scored inside. Reed Gates' putback moments later gave the Eddies a 29-20 advantage with a little over three minutes left in the period.

Scott Hassinger / For Leader Publications

Edwardsburg's Maverick Gates (32) gets inside position and scores against Sturgis defenders.

Sturgis quickly cut its deficit to six, 29-23, after 6-4 senior center Gavin Lewis scored down low and was fouled. Lewis made the charity shot.

Edwardsburg got the final four points of the period with Crist converting underneath and Reed Gates hitting two free throws to send the Eddies into the final period with a 33-23 lead.

Lewis drained an 8-foot jumper to bring Sturgis within nine, 36-27 with 4:17 left in the game. But a pair of baskets and a free throw from Kevin Wright and deuce from Isaac Dittenber helped the Eddies increase their lead to 43-29 with a minute left in the contest. Crist stepped up and made a free throw down the stretch to put the finishing touches on the win.

Edwardsburg came out strong to start the game jumping out to a 17-2 advantage after one stanza and looking like they would win easily.

With its zone defense, Sturgis was able to hold Edwardsburg to just eight points during the second quarter. The Trojans, however, only managed to secure eight points themselves and still trailed its hosts by double digits entering intermission.

Cubs enter season with high hopes

By DAVID BRANDT
AP Baseball Writer

Nam Y. Huh / AP

New Chicago Cubs player Alex Bregman, right, listens to his agent Scott Boras at a news conference in Chicago, on Jan. 15.

MESA, Ariz. — The Chicago Cubs are coming off a 92-win season, return much of a productive and athletic lineup, have a deep group of talented pitchers and signed All-Star third baseman Alex Bregman during the offseason.

It's safe to say elite expectations will be back at Wrigley Field this summer.

Cubs manager Craig Counsell didn't shy away from that reality Wednesday before the team's first official spring training workout for pitchers and catchers. Addressing reporters for the first time in Arizona, he said "everybody works really hard to create a team like this."

"You work really hard to build a roster that has expectations," Counsell said. "You work really hard to get on a team that has expectations. That's what we want. We're truly excited."

It's been nearly 10 years since the Cubs beat the Cleveland Indians for the World Series title in 2016. The franchise has stayed competitive since – making the playoffs four times, including last season – but hasn't been able to recreate the magic or talent that famously snapped 108 years of futility.

This roster might represent its best chance.

The lineup is relatively young but has experience, headlined by Pete Crow-Armstrong, Dansby Swanson, Ian Happ, Nico Hoerner, Michael Busch and Seiya Suzuki. Adding Bregman – a two-time World Series champion – on a $175 million, five-year deal should make them even more formidable.

The 31-year-old Bregman hit .273 with 18 homers and 61 RBIs in 114 games last season.

"We've added a really good baseball player who is just passionate about the game," Counsell said. "It's fun to be around people like that. We have a lot of people like that. So I think, from that perspective, he fits in."

The Cubs also still have Matt Shaw, who had a good rookie season at third base and now is expected to move into a super-utility role because of Bregman's arrival. Shaw played good defense at third and hit .226 with 13 homers and 44 RBIs, overcoming a slow start at the plate and showing considerable improvement during the season's second half.

The 24-year-old has spent most of his baseball career at third or second, but he has also dabbled in the outfield. Counsell said Shaw will get more work in the outfield this spring as they try and make him as versatile as possible.

"Matt's got a fun challenge ahead of him," Counsell said. "That's how I see it and I think that's how he sees it."

Chicago's starting rotation could also be a strength with newcomer Edward Cabrera – who was acquired in a trade with the Marlins – joining Matthew Boyd, Shota Imanaga, Jameson Taillon and Cade Horton. Cabrera went 8-7 with a 3.53 ERA in a career-high 26 starts and 137 2/3 innings last year.

The 24-year-old Horton is entering his second season after a fantastic rookie year. The right-hander was 11-4 with a 2.67 ERA, though he missed the postseason with a rib injury.

"There's still a lot to prove," Horton said. "Now guys have a scouting report on me, they know my stuff. It's all about going out there and executing pitches, giving our team a chance to win."

The Cubs' bullpen – as it is for almost every team in the big leagues – is a work in progress. Counsell did provide a mild surprise on Wednesday by confirming that Daniel Palencia would be team's closer if the season started today.

Palencia was very good last season with a 2.91 ERA and 22 saves, and Counsell envisions a similar role in 2026, though he also said the team must remain flexible.

"There's always going to be surprises in that area of your team," Counsell said. "That's how it's going to work."

But overall, the Cubs have more certainty about their potential 26-man roster than most teams. Cubs' President of Baseball Operations Jed Hoyer said this was "the best kind of spring training" because there was so much optimism and hunger to improve on last season's success.

"I know the expectations are high – which is great," Hoyer said. "The excitement in camp is palpable. The players are talking about it, the coaches are talking about it. They're excited about our group."

Verlander hopes to correct 'regret' from first time with Tigers

By CHRIS MCCOSKY
The Detroit News (TNS)

LAKELAND, Fla. — It's going to be hard for Justin Verlander to escape the nostalgia of this whole situation.

"Yeah, (Tarik) Skubal was showing me around the locker room and all of a sudden he goes, 'There you are on the wall.'" Verlander said Thursday morning. "That's cool, I guess. There's just a lot of emotions running through. I haven't processed it all yet."

Tigers president Scott Harris is not a sentimental man when it comes to building Detroit's roster. And he had no previous history with Verlander. So the decision to sign the soon-to-be, 43-year-old future Hall-of-Famer had less to do with the past and everything to do with the now.

"I'd never met him before, but I know what he means to this city and this organization," Harris said. "And when we had an opportunity for him, we just want to engage him and help him understand what we're trying to achieve here and how he fits.

"We know how he fits in the city and organization, we wanted him to know how he fits on this team and how he can help us win."

It's a fairytale story, really, one Tigers Nation has dreamt about since Verlander was traded to Houston in 2017. And, as he explained Thursday, a part of Verlander's heart remained in Detroit.

"It was definitely in the back of my mind," Verlander said of returning. "I grew up in front of the fans in Detroit. I was 21 years old when I got to Lakeland for the first time. I have so much history here. And last year, when we got knocked out of the playoff run toward the end of the season, I was thinking about where I wanted to be.

"Detroit just kept coming to my mind."

The last thing he wanted to be was a right-handed mercenary, floating from team to team until he hung up his spikes. He wanted to be on a championship-caliber team. He wanted to be on a team he had a connection to.

The Tigers checked both boxes. The problem was, when he called owner Chris Ilitch and Harris and manager AJ Hinch early in the offseason, the Tigers didn't have a spot for him. Since then, though, they learned that Reese Olson was going to miss the season with shoulder surgery.

"That's not the way you want it to go," Verlander said. "There is a lot of young talent here."

Harris talked about Verlander having some unfinished business in Detroit, referencing the World Series losses in 2006 and 2012.

"Yeah, that's what Scott said," Verlander said with a grin. "I wouldn't say unfinished. You leave everything on the field. It's not like it's unfinished business. It didn't leave a bad taste in my mouth. I know we did everything possible to try to win one. Playoffs can end up being a little bit of a crap shoot.

"The ball needs to roll your way one time and it can change the course of history."

That said, to come back and help the Tigers win a ring, well, that's the ultimate fairytale ending.

"The one thing I'd want to accomplish in Detroit that I had a couple of shots at that I really regret not achieving is a World Series title," Verlander said. "Mr. I (former owner Mike Ilitch) was such an incredible owner and someone I really admired. In talking to Chris and seeing how the torch got passed down and how he's going for it like his dad did – I'm really happy to be back here with a World Series-caliber team."

The support he got from the Detroit fans, which continued even after he left, was not lost on Verlander.

"I've definitely felt the Detroit presence," he said. "I got so many text messages from old friends, from Detroit friends, just as many as when I threw a no-hitter or won the Cy Young or the World Series. It was that much attention. Pretty cool."

"I thought our kids were very physical and were guarding the basketball very well in the first half. Lukis Bir is very good player for them and we lost him a couple times. But I thought for the most part we were in good position and did things right defensively most of the night. It's a credit to our kids for picking up Sturgis changes real quickly throughout the game. We only had seven turnovers and gave up just three offensive rebounds," Frick said.

Crist paced Edwardsburg in scoring with 13 points. Reed Gates, a 6-3 sophomore forward, contributed 10 for the Eddies followed by Maverick Gates with six, including two triples in the first half, and Wright finished with five.

"Blaise has been great. He's one of our team captains and works hard everyday and everything that's happening for him right now is by design. He's been a big offensive and vocal leader for us," Frick said.

Edwardsburg converted 15 field goals, including three triples, and finished the game 5-of-9 at the foul stripe. In comparison, Sturgis drained 13 field goals and went 3-of-6 from the free-throw stripe.

Reed Gates added five rebounds for the Eddies, while Law Gates and Wright pulled down three each. Sophomore guard Liam Sieggreen also drained a big three for the Eddies in the opening half.

Scott Hassinger / For Leader Publications

Blaise Crist (12) from Edwardsburg drives inside to score on Sturgis' Owen Frost (4) in the first half.

"We have a lot of guys on this team who can shoot the ball very well. There are three guys shooting over 40 percent from three-point territory. But in a game like tonight where the possessions are limited you have to get really good shots. Crist and Wright took control of our offense and made sure we got good looks and took nice shots at the end," Frick said.

Sturgis was led in scoring by Lewis with 15, while Bir and Fernando Villason added six each for the Trojans.

"We have great leadership on this basketball team. Michael Wright, Blaise Crist and Maverick Gates are our team captains and they are strong leaders and are a big reason when we win. This is a young squad and some of those kids are playing good minutes for us. Without those three older guys though our record could be flippped just as easily," Frick said.

Edwardsburg rounds out the regular season with three straight home games, including its next game on Friday at 7:15 p.m. against Niles.

Arlington Heights rallies to bring Bears to the suburbs – and fight off Indiana

By ROBERT McCOPPIN
Chicago Tribune (TNS)

CHICAGO — As competition for a new Chicago Bears stadium intensifies, suburban fans and leaders plan to rally Wednesday night to bring the team to Arlington Heights, Ill. – with a new urgency to fight off a bid from Indiana.

The Indiana Senate recently passed a bill to create a northwest Indiana sports stadium authority to finance, build and lease an arena.

But Rolling Meadows Mayor Lara Sanoica, who supports bringing the Bears to neighboring Arlington Heights, issued a statement that the proposed Indiana law would be a bad deal for workers.

"Indiana's sales pitch is that you can build a world-class stadium by shortchanging the workers who build it," Sanoica said. "Illinois doesn't work that way. We know our families deserve better than a race to the bottom."

The Indiana bill prohibits project labor agreements on the stadium project. Such agreements, Sanoica said, ensure that construction workers receive union-scale wages, retirement benefits and apprenticeships. The Indiana Senate also eliminated participation goals for minority-owned and women-owned businesses.

In contrast, the Illinois Mega Projects Bill that the Bears want requires a project labor agreement and a goal of awarding 20 percent of contracts to minority-owned businesses.

The Mega Projects bill would allow the Bears, or any other sponsor of a major development, to negotiate long-term property taxes with local taxing bodies.

It wouldn't cost the state a dime. The Bears propose paying for their own $2 billion enclosed stadium. But team officials want the state to help pay for an estimated $855 million in infrastructure costs for things like new roads, rail access and water mains.

Arlington Heights Mayor Jim Tinaglia said he thinks Illinois lawmakers are making progress to counter Indiana's offer.

"This is no longer Arlington Heights versus Chicago," he said. "This is about doing what we need to keep the Bears here in Illinois."

Local school leaders, who would be most affected by any property tax deal, support the Illinois legislation. They would be able to broker their own deal, as they did in a short-term deal that sets the Bears tax at $3.6 million annually – more than the former Arlington International Racecourse site ever paid.

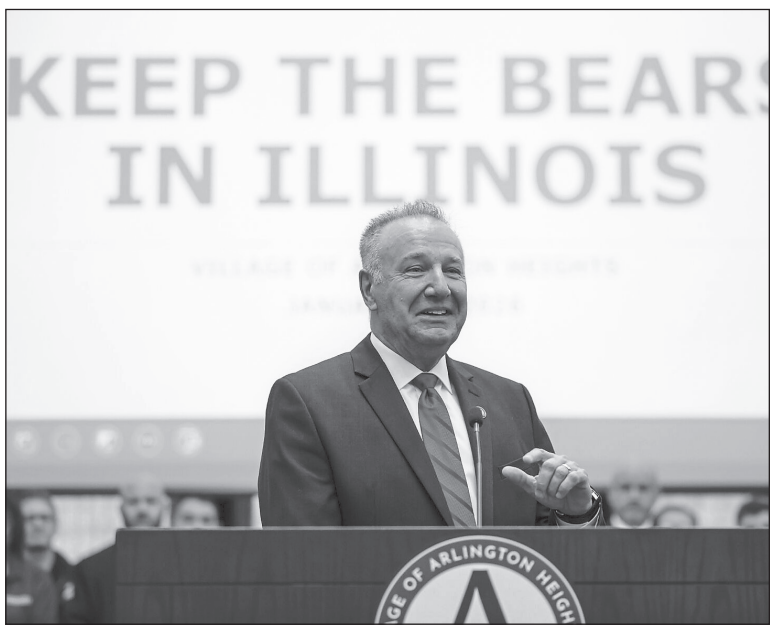
The team bought the 326-are site for $197 million in February of 2023. They announced plans for a $5 billion multi-use project to include hotels, restaurants, housing and parks.

When tax negotiations temporarily bogged down, the team shifted its focus to instead propose a new stadium on the lakefront in Chicago, to replace the team's current home at Soldier Field. That would have cost some $2.5 billion in taxpayer funding, but state leaders said they wouldn't do it, and the plan went nowhere.

After Illinois lawmakers failed to even consider the Mega Projects deal, the team surprised everyone by saying they were looking into possibly moving to northwest Indiana. Sites in Hammond, Gary and Portage have been proposed.

That got Illinois leaders' attention. This week, Gov. J.B. Pritzker said state officials have been meeting with the team and making progress. Pritzker repeatedly has said the state won't pay for a stadium, but would be open to paying for infrastructure, as is commonly done with big projects.

State legislative leaders also expressed recent openness to the Mega Projects deal. But Chicago lawmakers have suggested that any deal would need some way to pay off the remaining debt of more than $500 million for the 2003 renovation of Soldier Field.



Stacey Wescott / Chicago Tribune / TNS

Arlington Heights Mayor Jim Tinaglia speaks at a news conference about the Mega Project Bill and how to keep the Bears in Illinois on Jan. 16, in Arlington Heights, Illinois.

The Arlington Heights rally, sponsored by the non-profit suburban marketing group Chicago Northwest and a group of local residents and business leaders called Touchdown Arlington, is to feature local leaders calling for state lawmakers to pass the Mega Projects bill.

The Republican-majority Indiana House is expected to take up the Bears legislation, and possibly make changes, before lawmakers aim to adjourn February 27. Indiana House Speaker Todd Huston is sponsoring the bill, calling it a huge economic opportunity, but wants a commitment from the Bears before finalizing the legislation.

Any new enclosed stadium would compete with the retractable-roofed Lucas Oil Stadium in Indianapolis for events like concerts, college playoffs and the Super Bowl. Any new taxes in northwest Indiana are not likely to be well-received by residents who are already protesting skyrocketing utility bills.

The Democratic-controlled Illinois General Assembly session ends May 31. A stadium would take about three years to build, and the Bears wanted to start construction last year.
